

Let the future grow.
Let the city continue.

Technology belongs to an era; the city belongs to generations. The city is not a container for technology; it is the continuity of intergenerational life.

Long-lived city

Streets, trees, walking, public service and shared memory do not yield to short-cycle equipment.

Adaptable city

Rooms, thresholds, maintenance and operations may be repaired, cleared and handed over again, inside rights and public-continuity boundaries.

Temporary intelligence

Technology appears only when needed, accountable, stoppable and fully resettable; otherwise it returns to ordinary city or NO-BUILD.
