

Mandate and evidence boundary

The taskbook is highest. The announcement confirms professional tasks. Source registration limits every claim. Provisional boundaries support generation and review only.

Three-level transfer

Research organizes the capability loop, overall design forms the field, and three districts test public/controlled access, campus closure, and a complete journey.

Three key areas

Locations use provisional polygons. Coloured lines are task interfaces, not roads, station entrances, bridges, tunnels or engineering alignments.

Completion evidence: advance decision + continuous transition + recovery + no-AI baseline + accountable role + stop condition + reopening evidence

Five operating states

The same journey is tested in ordinary, peak, night, failure, and offline/refusal states. Line, shape and text repeat the state beyond colour.

Projects and evidence maturity

JZ-01	A01 park crossing
JZ-02	K1 dual path
JZ-03	K2 public interface
JZ-04	K3 complete journey
JZ-05	Human takeover
JZ-06	Five-state validation

Phasing follows evidence maturity, not a fictional schedule. Events, budget, named bodies, construction and engineering require separate confirmation.

Metrics, risks and next steps

Countable structure is not field performance. Success, worst-state completion, takeover time and reopening pass rate remain unknown pending real tests.
